

IEEE BROADCAST TECHNOLOGY SOCIETY

DISTINGUISHED LECTURER NOMINATIONS

The Broadcast Technology Society maintains a list of technically diverse and geographically dispersed individuals who serve as Distinguished Lecturers (DLs). The formal term of appointment for each DL shall be three calendar years. This list is updated once per year, with the possible addition of new candidates and review of those DLs whose terms are due to expire.

The DLP Chair, drawing from the Society's AdCom, Technical Committees, Editorial Boards, and Chapters no later than 1 September of each year, shall solicit nominations for new DLs. Unsolicited nominations may also be sent directly to the DLP Chair. All nominations will be considered by the DLP Chair and a list of nominees, along with a list of their lecture topics, will be provided to the AdCom at least three weeks prior to its fall meeting. The AdCom will consider this list at its next meeting and provide its advice and consent for the final selections, which shall be announced by the DLP Chair. A potential Nominee must agree to serve if chosen, before a Nomination is submitted. Self-nominations are acceptable. DLs whose terms are expiring may self-nominate for another term, following this process.

The list of nominees shall comprise individuals of distinction who are members of the IEEE and of the IEEE Broadcast Technology Society, who are recognized experts in their fields of endeavor, and who are capable of delivering a message of importance to the technical community as well as to the Society's members organized in chapters around the world.

Following identification of the top candidates and alternates by the AdCom, the Society staff, on behalf of the DLP Chair, will reconfirm in writing the candidates' willingness to serve as a BTS Distinguished Lecturer.
